ROCK ART OF THE GRAND CANYON REGION

THRILLS, STILLS, AND FUN BEHIND THE CREATION OF THE BOOK

For the August 4 SDRAA meeting, Steve Freers will share the adventures that he and his co-authors experienced while documenting and researching their recent book. Through rich photography and narrative, we will enjoy Steve's own inimitable sense of humor as he describes the behind-the-scenes journey in creating the book. He even secreted a small video camera into his backpack so we could vicariously experience the awe of hiking within the magnificent canyon systems, negotiating rugged and steep trails, and walking along narrow and deep cliffs by moonlight. He hopes to impart not just the sense of adventurous research, but a closer understanding of the integration of such a powerful environment and its influence on the aboriginal artists who painted or carved the Grand Canyon's ancient Art.

Freers has been involved in rock art research for the past 25 years and has worked closely with tribal societies. In 1994 he co-authored Fading Images, a book on southern California rock art, and he served five years as the senior editor for the American Rock Art Research Association.

If you would like to bring your copy of either of his books for him to sign, he has generously offered to do so during the regular social hour before his presentation.
